

BEFORE . . . Historic cobblestone house in Newark shows moribund symptom with "Moved" sign in window just before wreckers came. Built 130 years ago, it was condemned to die for "progress." It was next to the Grange Hall.

... AND AFTER — It's only rubble here, and it was nothing at all after wreckers got through. Building and a theater went down for a development.

Editor's note: This is a scan of a xerographic copy in the Cobblestone Museum archives from a microfilm image of a newspaper article available online. This is the best possible reproduction of the microfilm.

... AND AFTER - It's only rubble here, and it was nothing at all after wreckers get through. Building and a theater went down for a development.