

Round Cobblestones on Mile Square Road

CHILL WINTER winds mean little to Mrs. Clinton Campbell and her daughter, who occupy this home on Mile Square Road near Mendon, for walls are 18 inches thick. The Campbells assume the home, which they have occupied since 1935, was built about 128 years ago, for the date 1832 is stamped into a board on attic floor. The handsome place with vertical woodwork and interior trim in black walnut is cobblestone architecture at its best. This is one in photo series by D and C Chief Photographer Fred Powers.
