Description:

Structural design: 1-story house, long side facing road; center entrance, flanked by 2 windows

Masonry details: Per CFS & 4th Annual Cobblestone Tour pamphlet descriptions—façade lake-washed red stones, herringbone pattern; horizontal wide-Vd joints; unembellished verticals. In early 1900s quoins were covered with cement piers. End walls similar except varicolored stones—white, gray, red, black. Lintels: wood beams finished with a 1" wide cleat around the edges to form a panel; wood sills.

Note: Only known picture resolution is too low to discern any details.

Until the railroad began operations there was a stage line on the Ridge road from Oswego to Lewiston. The stage with the mail arrived at midnight and the postmaster would sort out the Sodus mail and return the rest to the sack while the stage waited. Jim DeBrine drove to Newark every morning with his red and yellow stage and carried the mail and passengers. When the trains began to run regularly on the Lake Shore and the Northern Central railroads both the Ridge road and the Newark stage lines were discontinued. In addition to working his farm back of his cobblestone dwelling on Maple avenue, Jim drove to the Sodus station four times and to the Northern Central station at Wallington twice each day.

Sodus Record, TH 6/15/1978, p6

Burned House Dangerous Eyesore ... delegation of local residents ... letter written to the Sodus Building Inspector... in regard to a burned out cobblestone house on Maple Avenue describing the building as "not only a danger but an eyesore which decreases the value of our property". The cobblestone house, owned by Nicholas LaChase of Rochester was gutted by flames earlier this year and has since remained unrepairs. Broken glass and unboarded windows make this property a safety hazard. Village Attorney assured the delegation that LaChase had received written notice that the structure was in violation of village ordinances and failure to correct these violations would result in legal action..."
