

Rotary, guests

BY C.W. LATTIN

S ometime between 75 and 80 years ago this picture was taken of the Albion Rotary Club and their guests at a meeting.

In the background we see "The Four Chimneys," which was a restaurant or tearoom operated by the Cole family north of Eagle Harbor.

The Albion Rotary Club, established in 1922, met there at the time of this picture. It is believed the young ladies seated in front provided musical entertainment for the luncheon.

Ladies, from left, not known, not known, Marjorie, Garrett, Enid Strassner, not known, not known, not known, and Albertina Garrison.

Seated men, from left, William Karns, monuments; Eugene Wilcox, hardware; Herman Neuremburg, clothing; Charles Dean, produce and Nelson Barrus, dry cleaning.

Second row, left to right, Earl Sullivan, carpenter; John Mansfield, farmer; Clayton Anderson, beans; James Lonergan, journalist; John Kane, vinegar; Dr. John Cramer, dentist; Amos Beedon, dry goods; Dr. Ralph Brodie, M.D.; John Van Stone, car dealer; and Kirk Cole, lumberman.

Third row, from left, William Luttenton, guest; Carl Bergenson, superintendent of schools; Henry Anderson, Albion Brass Works; James Craffey, insurance; Stanley Woods, feed; Edward Archbald, fruit farmer; Burt McNall, furniture and embalming; Sidney Eddy, printing; Dart Porter, insurance; and Howard Woods, miller.